This Review is the latest issue in a series of reviews on policy questions which began in 1971. The Cambridge Economic Policy Group comprises:

Paul Atkinson	Graham Gudgin
Iain Begg	Barry Moore
Kenneth Coutts	John Rhodes
Francis Cripps	Roger Tarling
Michael Anyadike-Danes	Terry Ward
Wynne Godley	Frank Wilkinson

Stephen Fothergill and Peter Tyler of the Centre for Environmental Studies have kindly made available results of their research. M. F. Stonefrost has aided our understanding of the controversy over local government finance. Beth Scott prepared much of the statistical material. Joyce Leverett typed nearly all of this Review through several drafts, and Sarah Bourne organised and sub-edited the text. The Cambridge University Computing Service provided its usual facilities.

The Economic Policy Group has received continuing financial support from the Social Science Research Council.
