The authors of this Review are grateful to Francis Cripps and Ken Coutts for assistance in programming the computer model of regional labour markets and linking it on to the CEPG macroeconomic model of the UK. They would also like to thank Iain Begg and Terry Ward who helped to edit the Review, Joyce Leverett who typed all the drafts, Ann Newton who subedited the text, as well as the other staff in the Department of Applied Economics who helped in various ways. We are grateful for the facilities provided by the Cambridge University Computing Service and to Steven Fothergill and Peter Tyler for making their data available to us.

Financial support for developing the regional economic model and for research on urban labour markets was provided by the Social Science Research Council.
